5 Songs Where Anti-NRA Rapper Eminem Glorified Guns

Steve C. Mitchell/Invision/AP

Rapper Eminem slammed gun owners and the National Rifle Association (NRA) Sunday night during a political performance his hit single “Nowhere Fast” at the 2018 iHeartRadio Music Awards.

“Gun owners clutching their loaded weapons. They love their guns more than our children,” Eminem rapped.

The Detroit-based crooner called out the NRA in a gun control-themed verse, rapping, "This whole country is going nuts/ And the NRA is in our way. They're responsible for this whole production. They hold the strings, they control the puppet."

Ironically, the middle-aged music mogul has spent years singing song lyrics glorifying the very firearms he seems to despise.

Below is five songs on which Eminem shows his affinity for firearms.

***LANGUAGE WARNING*****

On his second major studio effort, 1997's "Slim Shady EP," Eminem rapped on the song "Murder, Murder" about shooting police officers and innocent bystanders.

Left the keys in the van, with a gat in each hand
Went up in Eastland and shot a policeman
Fuck a peace plan, if a citizen bystands
The shit is in my hands, here's your lifespan

On the 1999 record "Kill you," Eminem spends four minutes fetishizing over various ways to commit murder. In one lyric, he warns a woman that he'll put a bullet through her.

Put your hands down, bitch, I ain't gon' shoot you
I'ma pull you to this bullet and put it through you

In a skit off the 2002 album "The Eminem Show" Eminem is reenacting a 2000 incident that found him threatening to kill his ex-girlfriend and her new boyfriend with a loaded gun.

On the 2004 song "One Shot 2 Shot," Eminem delivers a gun violence-heavy hook and a verse riddled with references to pulling triggers.

One shot, two shot, three shots, four shots
All I hear is gunshots, this is where the fun stops
Bodies drop, hit the floor, music's off, party stops
Everybody hit the door, somebody's licking shots off

Eminem delivers a violent verse on the upbeat 2004 track "Get My Gun," off Detroit-based rap group D12's sophomore album D12 World.

On the four-minute song, Eminem raps:

I'm trying to pull the trigger but it's stuck, fuck
My shit is all jammed up, ugh
Come on, you cock-sucking, good-for-nothing
Motherfucking piece of shit shoot, ah Yeah!
What up, bitch!? Say that shit again
Shot, the bullet missed, hit a brick, bounced off it
Ricocheted back in his shin
Went through his bitch on it's way back, hit his friend
Payback homie, don't play that shit is spin
To be on I told you to leave this shit alone
Or... (I'm gonna get my gun!)
And it's a shame, I'm too drunk to even aim
Denaun stepped in the way and I shot him in his leg
It's like

Eminem Takes Stand Against Gun Violence on New Song 'Darkness' From Surprise Album: 'When Will This End?'

Eminem surprised fans Friday by dropping a brand new album, Music to Be Murdered By, the lead track for which is a musical stand against gun violence in the U.S.

The lyrics and music video for "Darkness" eerily evoke the 2017 Las Vegas shooting in which 58 people were killed when 68-year-old Stephen Paddock opened fire at a country music festival from his 32nd floor hotel suite.

Eminem, who appears to put himself in the mind of the shooter, raps scathingly about lax U.S. gun control laws that allow people like Paddock to stockpile automatic weapons with little monitoring.

In one poignant lyric, Eminem raps about not having prior convictions, which makes it easier for people to buy guns. "Finger on the trigger, but I'm a licensed owner / With no prior convictions, so loss, the sky's the limit / So my supplies infinite, strapped like I'm a soldier," raps Eminem.

The lyrics also appear to allude to treatment of mental health in the U.S. The shooter has "no signs of mental illness," raps Eminem, but the chorus suggests someone who is lonely and dealing with mental illness.

"I don't wanna be alone in the darkness," Eminem repeats on the chorus, before sampling the famous first line from the Simon and Garfunkel song "The Sound of Silence": "Hello darkness, my old friend."

The video concludes with various news clips about mass shootings that have taken place in recently history, seen on televisions mounted on top of each other. The screens then transform into a collage of the United States flag.

Eminem closes the video with a simple message on screen, encouraging fans to engage with the upcoming 2020 presidential election. Text appears on the screen reading: "When will this end? When enough people care." Another text screen points people to register to vote along with the message: "Make your voice heard and help change gun laws in America."

According to the Gun Violence Archive, there have been 1,767 gun violence deaths in the U.S. since the start of 2020. Already this year, the U.S. has had nine mass shootings.

In total, there were 39,385 gun violence deaths across America last year, the not-for-profit group reported.

Last year had the highest number of mass shootings in the U.S. over the six years that the Gun Violence Archive has been tracking gun-related violence. There were 417 mass shootings in 2019, up from 337 in 2018, according to the group's data.

Music to Be Murdered By, Eminem's 11th studio album, was executive produced by the rapper's long-time collaborator Dr. Dre and features collaborations with Ed Sheeran and late rapper Juice Wrld, who died aged 21 in December following a seizure at an airport in Chicago.
